What does a Gourmet Butcher do?

A Danish Gourmet Butcher does not slaughter animals. Instead, the profession focuses on preparing, cutting and refining high-quality meat products and delicacies.

During your apprenticeship, you will learn to:

- Cut and prepare premium meat products.
- Produce charcuterie, delicacies, convenience foods and ready meals.

EURES ESPAÑA. Síguenos en:

- Develop new recipes and food products.
- Work with food safety and quality control.
- Plan production and work closely with experienced colleagues.

After completing your apprenticeship, you will receive a Danish Journeyman's Certificate, a respected vocational qualification recognised both in Denmark and internationally.

What can you expect from your apprenticeship?

We offer:

- A paid apprenticeship throughout your education.
- A thorough introduction and structured training programme.
- Assistance with finding accommodation, obtaining a CPR number and settling into life in Denmark.
- A safe workplace with a strong focus on employee well-being.
- Friendly and experienced colleagues who will support you from day one.
- An informal working environment with employee involvement.
- Excellent opportunities for professional and personal development.
- A healthy work-life balance with time for friends and leisure activities.

Several of our employees have worked abroad themselves and understand what it is like to start a new life in another country.

We are looking for someone who:

- Is an EU citizen with the right to live and work in Denmark.
- Has a passion for food, quality and craftsmanship.
- Is ambitious and eager to become highly skilled.
- Has completed compulsory education or an equivalent qualification.
- Can communicate in English.
